Short Description

Working those calf muscles can often be a by product of the traditional seated leg press. But the Spirit 35 Pin Select Standing Calf machine has been designed to target the gastrocnemius and soleus muscles which make up your calf, whilst also providing stability and strengthening across knee and ankle joints.

This commercial selectorised machine provides you with a good 90kg weight stack as standard. With adjustable shoulder pads to ensure a comfortable position for the exercise, you also benefit from the non-slip footplate that ensures you can feel secure during the exercise.

Choosing Your Single Machine

For commercial facilities, or for those at home who need a specific machine for building strength in specific muscle groups, the standing calf machine is a good option over using a leg press or the smaller seated calf raise machines. Working the whole leg provides stability across the knee and ankle joints, whilst working the muscle.

The Spirit 35 Pin Select range has 21 machines, allowing you to build a range that is not only stylish but practical to your needs. With commercial warranties, features like gas-assisted seat adjustments and good weight stacks for each model, this is a great range for commercial gyms and fitness facilities. Likewise, for home use the range is perfect if you have the room.
